AWARE Spring 2017 Seminar Series

Advancing Women in Agriculture through Research and Education (AWARE)

April 14th – Carol J. Pierce Colfer
Friday, 12:20-1:10pm
102 Mann Library

Senior Associate / Anthropologist, Center for International Forestry Research (CIFOR); Visiting Scholar, Southeast Asia Program, Cornell University

“Can revisiting ‘Bushler Bay’, Washington advance understanding of gender in forestry?”

April 28th – Mary Kate Wheeler
Friday, 12:20-1:10pm
102 Mann Library

Agricultural Economic Analyst, Department of Entomology, Cornell University; MS 2017, Dyson School of Applied Economics and Management, Cornell University

“On revisiting ‘Bushler Bay’, Washington advance understanding of gender in forestry?”

May 2nd – Helga Recke
Tuesday, 12:20-1:10pm
102 Mann Library

External Project Advisory Committee member, Gender-Responsive Researchers Equipped for Agricultural Transformation (GREAT) Project; Visiting Fellow, AWARE Program, Cornell University

“Measuring what matters in agricultural research: building an evidence base for gender responsiveness depends on the data”

May 5th – Saida Hodžić
Friday, 12:20-1:10pm
102 Mann Library

Assistant Professor, Anthropology Department and Feminist, Gender and Sexuality Studies Program, Cornell University

“When Development Means Sensitization: Ghanaian Women’s Perspectives on NGO Economies of Value”

AWARE supports NYS farmers by providing local snacks and beverages at every seminar.

AWARE is an initiative by IP-CALS to engage a community focused on empowering women in agriculture. AWARE believes that empowering women as an underserved group holds the greatest potential to make significant impacts in agricultural development. Visit ip.cals.cornell.edu/AWARE to learn more, or to subscribe to our email list.